Christ The Redeemer

Christ The Redeemer

Christ the Redeemer is a monumental statue of Jesus Christ overlooking Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. It stands on Mount Corcovado and is one of the most recognizable landmarks of Brazil.

Location

The statue is located on Mount Corcovado in Rio de Janeiro. The mountain is part of the Tijuca National Park.

Construction

The statue was constructed during the 1920s and completed in 1931. The project involved Brazilian engineers, artists, and architects, with French sculptor Paul Landowski associated with the sculptural design.

Design

Christ the Redeemer depicts Jesus Christ standing with his arms extended horizontally. The pose creates a cross-like visual form and represents an open gesture.

Materials

The statue has a reinforced concrete structure covered with soapstone mosaic tiles. Soapstone was selected because it is durable and suitable for the exterior surface.

Dimensions

The statue itself is approximately 30 meters tall, while the pedestal adds additional height. Its location high above the city makes it visually prominent across Rio de Janeiro.

Art Deco

Christ the Redeemer is widely recognized as an important example of Art Deco monumental sculpture. Its simplified geometric form reflects characteristics associated with the style.

Religious And Cultural Role

The statue is a Christian monument and has become a major cultural symbol of Rio de Janeiro and Brazil.

Tourism

The site attracts visitors who travel to the summit of Mount Corcovado to view the statue and panoramic landscapes of Rio de Janeiro.

Modern Significance

Christ the Redeemer became one of the New Seven Wonders of the World in 2007.
